Abstract:

Geography is the knowledge of the relationship and dependence between environmental factors that affects the lives of the residents of each area because man is a geographical phenomenon and the geographical location is as influential factor on land and it is also the first step in identifying the history of each tribe because every tribe has its own specific geographic location and the greatness of the historical and cultural tribe is obtained with its geographical study and with this study can be realized somewhat to the past and the political and economic situation of that tribe In the meantime, Yemen is one of the areas that is located in the southwest of the Arabian peninsula that many tribes were living there one of the tribes, called "Khasam" and the specific climate and natural position led to the income

Of the tribe provided through agriculture and trade and commerce So that destroyed the dam of "Marab" and began the migration of this tribe and they settled in the "Serat" of Yemen Cities like: "Tebaleh," "Bisheh", "Jarash" and "Vady Shora" and there were various markets in the life of this tribe and these markets was influential on political, economic and social life of this tribe

In this article we used from numerous historical sources in Arabic and Persian to express the geographic of "Khasam" tribe.

Key Words: Geography, economics, Yemen, Khasam tribe, climate.

From here begins the philosophy of geography because human is geographic phenomenon and understanding of these facts is not possible except through the study of historical.¹⁾

Historians study geography to better understand the dimensions of social past life of man because life of the tribe has occurred in particular place and different.

Geography can study the exact location of tribal life and events and the impact of man and environment on each other in the past time so geography research helps to better understand the history and life of the tribes.²⁾

In different courses, the role of environmental factors in the fate of the tribes has been different.

Geographic factors affect the climate; the location of each tribe in terms of road traffic and vice versa and the tribal politics is in its geography.³⁾

This article examines using multiple sources of tribal settlements and the impact of the geographical location on the economic life of "Khasam" tribe.

1) Divisions of the Arabian Peninsula:

The Arab tribes, whose origins and mainland are the Arabian Peninsula, are one of the most famous relatives of the Sami race, and the "Samiyan" are one of the great and well-known tribes that have been divided into multiple tribes.⁴⁾

The Arabian Peninsula is the first "Samiyan" origin and is considered to be the largest peninsula in the Southwest Asia.

Since the recognition of geography is important for a better understanding of tribes and historical events, it is about introducing the origin of the Arab tribes and the geographic location of the "khasam" tribe.

Geographically, the Arabian Peninsula is divided into three parts:

- 1) North and West or Hejaz (Saudi Arabia or "Al-Arabiya" "al-Hajerieh" or " al-Sakhrieh"), which is also half Sinai Island and the territory of the "Nebtian" and covers East Egypt, south and southwest of the Almighty, and the lucky north and west of Saudi Arabia. And the cities of Mecca, Medina, "Taef", "Yanboo" and "Jaddeh" are also in this area and this is a mountainous area with vast deserts.
- 2) The center and east of the Arabian Desert ("Al-Arabiya" or "al-Sahrawiyeh") is a vast desert located between Iraq and the south, known as" Badia al-Sham", which includes the land of Najd, the vast deserts of Al-Khali, which lack rain and prosperity.
- 3) The south or Yemen, which is believed to have died in Arabia ("Al-Arabiya"or " al-Sa'ida"). This part of Saudi Arabia, which is the largest part of the trio, covers all areas of the Arabian Peninsula, and is about to begin near the present Suez city.
- 4) This area, passing south of Saudi Arabia to" Pesakous" in the "Ahvar" area, has been the most venerable point of the Arabian Peninsula, so that the effects of its brilliant civilizations are known to this day and since the origin of the "khasam" tribe was the land of Yemen It will be followed by a description of its geography.⁵⁾

2) Geography of the Yemeni Land:

The land of Yemen is located in the southwest of the Arabian Peninsula, and in fact Yemen is located in the south of Hejaz and Najd, and is between Oman and "Najran", which passes through the sea until it arrives in "Adan" and "Shahar", then it passes through Oman, and in "Beynooneh" is cut off and flows from the Maghreb to the Red Sea, and the Yemen dynasty breaks from the north to the south to the side of the sea and leads to the formation of lush valleys, and lies between the heights of Yemen and the valleys of that plateau. It extends from "Dahna" to "Yamameh", and it is said to this plateau" Ghayet", and the "Sahid' is in the middle of this plateau, which is locally between "Marab" and Geographic factors such as the climate and the path to the highway or in the isolation of the region affect on the lives of the inhabitants of tribe. This article tried to use multiple sources to reveal the towns and cities, and the formation of important seasonal markets and the impact of geographical location on the economic life of the "Khasam" tribe. Based on what was said it turned out that the natural conditions were divided Saudi of Arabia into several different parts and Yemen was one of these sectors that had enough water because it was near the Red Sea and the Indian Ocean and it was a fertile rain that had plagued the land there and this land was the site of many tribes, including the "Khasam" tribe. The "Kasm" tribe had suitable climate and adequate water and dynamic farming, and the ways of communication and trade, and the formation of important seasonal markets, so the economy of this tribe was capable and self-sufficient, therefore geography had a great influence on the political, economic and social life of this tribe, which they had the strength and the power so it can be said that the policies of governments are hidden in their geography.
